Hughes Will Probe Banks.

Albany, Nov. 9.—Reorganizing the state banking department will be an early act of Charles E. Hughes, it is expected.

for his inauguration as governor. It predicted that when the probethrust into New York banking it would a sensation equally the insatiable exposures. S. S. McClure, editor McClure's magazine, the original maver, declares such a banking investigation would result in more amazing revelations than anything yet. The probe will show great sums have been loaned without security. The present lay say no loans shall be made without collateral, but does not say what the amount of collateral shall be.

to see his old master. The Dalmatians man will offer the Valenthine man his price for the dog and keep him. This is probably the same dog which passed through Fremont about two weeks ago and attracted the attention of all who saw him by his hungry-looking and gaunt appearance. But the accepted theory then was that the canine was the property of some farmer who had lost the dog town. If the animal was the Dalmatians dog he went east on Sixteenth
